The chief received a message from Branchville just before the arrival of the night passenger train to be on the lookout for the men riding the "blind." The men were sighted, and two of them were caught when they tried to jump from the train and make a get-away. It was stated that the men attempted to rob a lady on the train at or near Branchville.

Captured Whiskey.

Last Friday Sheriff Ray confiscated twenty-four quarts of whiskey from two negroes. The sheriff received information that there would probably be an attempt to transport some whiskey to Bamberg from Cope, the supply of "good cheer" being exhausted in Bamberg, and he set watch near the river, and when the suspected automobiles, two in number, appeared coming from the direction of Cope, he stopped them. Between the two machines, he found 24 quarts, which he confiscated. Having no proof that the whiskey would be sold, no arrests were made. This is the first whiskey haul to be made since the county went dry.

Charged With Killing Husband.

Yesterday afternoon, just before The Herald went to press, Sheriff Ray brought to the county jail a negro woman, Florence Pinaker, who is charged with the killing of her husband. She is alleged to have shot Pinaker last Friday night. He was seriously wounded, and was carried to the Voorhees school hospital for treatment. The negro died there Tuesday night. An inquest was held over Pinaker's body yesterday afternoon, the verdict being that he came to his death at the hands of Florence Pinaker, his wife.

Ritter-Glover.

Mr. Henry C. Glover was married at Kearse last Wednesday at one o'clock to Miss Sudie Fogle Ritter. Mr. Glover was accompanied by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Glover, Mr. Lucien Patterson and a number of friends and relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Glover returned to Walterboro after the ceremony.

A reception was tendered the bride and groom at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Glover Thursday evening of last week. It was quite a brilliant affair.—Walterboro Press and Stadard.

Christmas at Cope.

Cope, Dec. 26.—Christmas was quietly celebrated here. Everybody wore a smile and a spirit of good cheer was everywhere in evidence. Although the local dispensary sold $500 worth of whiskey Thursday and more than $700 worth Friday, there was no drunkenness or disorder.

A Christmas tree at Union Methodist church Friday night was enjoyed by a large crowd and equally as pleasant was the Christmas tree last night at the Baptist church.

Dispensaries Sold Out.

Those depending on the county dispensaries to furnish the supply of whiskey for the holidays were doomed to disappointment—that is unless they purchased before last Thursday, for on that day the last bottle at the Bamberg dispensary was sold. For some days previous, the dispensary had had nothing in the line of whiskey but high-priced goods, and though the sale on these was slow, even the high-priced went very readily as Christmas approached. The county is now dry, all the dispensaries having closed out their stocks.

The county dispensary board is now winding up the affairs of the dispensary, under the law, which requires that after January first all dispensaries, whether or not they have disposed of all the stocks, must discontinue business. The stocks in the county being all sold out, the Bamberg county dispensary is now winding up its affairs.

Miss Priester is the daughter of Mr. W. H. Priester, of route one, and is a young lady of many accomplishments. Mr. Youmans is a young man of sterling character. Mr. and Mrs. Youmans are now receiving the congratulations of their many friends.

The County Chain Gangs.

Chain gang No. 1 is now located on the road from Olar to Ehrhardt. Supervisor McMillan stated yesterday that he expected this road would be completed within the next six weeks, and that the gang would then be placed on the road from Ehrhardt to Bamberg. The road from Olar to Rivers Bridge has been completed, and is now in fine condition.

Gang No. 2 is now working from Colston to Bamberg, and is making a fine piece of road.

A Quiet Christmas.

Christmas in Bamberg passed off very quietly, no accidents worthy of mention occurring. Practically everybody in town observed the day as a holiday, all the stores and public enterprises being closed either all day or for the greater part of the day. The crowd in the city on Christmas eve, composed largely of negroes, was exceptionally orderly. The chief of police stated that he saw but three drunken persons during the day, which was considered remarkably good considering the large crowd. With the exception of one or two minor disturbances, there was no disorderly conduct. The banks of the city observed both Saturday and Monday as holidays. Excepting the banks, all business was resumed Monday morning as usual.

THE ISLAND OF CYPRUS.

One of the Most Important in the Mediterranean Sea.

"Cyprus is one of the most important islands in the Mediterranean," says a bulletin given out recently by the National Geographic society, which describes England's reported offer to the Greeks for their aid in the world-war. "There are just two islands in the broad inland sea larger than Cyprus, and these are Sicily and Sardinia. There are few islands in the world more rich in historical associations, and none, probably, more coveted by a powerful neighbor.

"The island lies in the mouth of a pocket formed by Asia Minor and Syria at the northeastern end of the Mediterranean, being about equally distant from the mainland to the north and to the east. It has an area of 3,584 square miles, or is as large as the states of Delaware and Rhode Island combined. Its greater length is 141 miles and its greater width is 60 miles, while its average width is more than 35 miles. A great part of the island is taken up by two mountain ranges, one of which fills much of the southern and central part, and the other of which stretches along the northern coast.

"The coast of Asia Minor lies 46 miles to the north, and that of Syria between 50 and 55 miles to the east. Although nominally a possession of the Ottoman empire up until the outbreak of hostilities between the Turks and the Allies, Cyprus has been administered by Great Britain since 1878, and now forms an internal part of the British empire. England occupation has done much to improve the conditions of health on the island, as it has been a stimulus to the commercial development.

"The mountains of the island are wild and beautiful and upon their sides the forests are still growing that were famed and prized in early Egyptian times. They also contain the mines of copper, celebrated among the ancients and still richly productive. The highest altitude is attained by Mount Troodes, with a summit 6,406 feet above sea level.

"A wide valley runs east and west through the central part of the island. This valley is about 60 miles long, with a breadth varying from 10 to 20 miles. The mountain ranges on either side send their waters to the valley through intermittent torrents. Much of this lowland is uncultivated, though in the northern parts grain is grown. The soil of the whole valley is good, and there is no reason why the uncertain water supply might not be supplemented, bringing all of the land under cultivation. In the days when western civilization was in its swaddling clothes, Cyprus was widely known for its impassable forests, which not only clothed the sides and summits of its mountains with thick dark masses of green, but which overgrew the whole floor of the valley between with such an interlacing sturdy tangle of trees and underbrush, that it was difficult to clear the land for cultivation.

"The wonderful forests of the land, however, in more than 2,000 years of exploitation, that have passed over them have been almost entirely cut
